

Biggin Hill Memorial Museum Volunteer Role Profile – Café Host

Biggin Hill Memorial Museum (BHMM) tells the story of Britain's most famous fighter station from its role in the First World War to the building of St. George's Chapel of Remembrance in 1951. The museum will also preserve the historic memorial Chapel and surrounding landscape, including the Garden of Remembrance.

We are looking for volunteers to help create a welcoming and engaging visitor experience. If you enjoy meeting new people, have an interest in history and would enjoy volunteering with our small and dedicated team, we'd love to hear from you. You will have the chance to help shape the feel of our new museum, ensuring a world-class welcome to our visitors. In return you will get training, support and valuable experience in a museum at a very exciting moment.
